Use of Supplementary Instructional Programs and Materials To Enhance the Teaching and Learning Process – Video Tapes and Filmstrips

The use of videos, filmstrips, and television programs as supplementary instructional materials and programs are to be directly related to instructional objectives that are a part of the official curriculum. Such instructional aids are to be used judiciously. The use of the materials or programs is to be preplanned and effectively integrated into presentation of the lesson. Therefore, instructional plans must reflect the use of such instructional aids. All supplementary instructional aids are to have a direct benefit on the educational attainment of students and must have the approval of the principal. This policy also applies to functions that are non-instructional in nature (e.g., study halls, advisory periods, extra-curricular activities, etc.)
